1. Legal residence - Permanent. Legal residency is not defined in law. However, over the years, the courts and the Florida Department of State/Division of Elections’ have construed legal residency to be where a person mentally intends to make his or her permanent residence for purposes of registration. Additional evidence of such intent can come from items or activities such as obtaining a Florida driver’s license and listed residential address, paying tax receipts, paying bills for residency (light, water, garbage service) and receiving mail at address, claiming the property as homestead, declaring the county as domicile, and doing other activities indicative or normally associated with home life. Therefore, legal residence is a convergence of intent and fact. Once residency is established for voting purposes, it is presumptively valid or current until evidence shows otherwise. See Op. Atty Gen. Fla. 055-216 (August 26, 1955). A business address is not a satisfactory legal residential address. However, although not the rule, if the person is able to prove residence there despite the zoning ordinance, a fact-finding body could determine that the business address is the person’s legal residential address.

2. Legal residence - Temporarily Out-of-County. A person who has no permanent address in the county but intends to remain a resident of Florida and the county in which he or she is registered must be re-assigned to the Supervisor of Elections’ main office address and corresponding precinct. (Section 101.045, Fla. Stat.) The person has to have had some prior physical presence and residence in the county. Such persons though cannot vote in the municipal elections.

3. Legal residence - Mobile. For a person with a nontraditional abode (e.g., boat, motor home, etc.) who has or had physical presence in the county and intends for the county to be his or her permanent residence, acceptable addresses for voter registration purposes could include: 1) the place where messages are regularly received, 2) the general delivery address at a specific post office, or 3) the address for the campground or docking site (if mail is received there). Please note Supervisors of Elections have a duty per s. 98.045, F.S., to determine whether a person is eligible or not. If it appears that the address is not a residential address or cannot be determined to be a residential address, a Supervisor may ask the applicant for more information to determine if the applicant is a legal resident of the county. For example, if the applicant provides an address of a mail forwarding company as his or her residential address, the Supervisor may ask the applicant what other meaningful contacts exist to support the applicant’s prior or present physical presence in the county and intent to be a permanent resident of the county. See DE 18-09. For those mobile applicants who are legal residents of the county but do not

2. Under Florida law, you cannot have two valid driver licenses for different states at the same time.

3. For homestead exemption claims, “permanent residence” is defined as the place where a person has or his or her true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment to which, whenever absent, he or she intends to return. A person can only have one permanent residence at a time. Once established, the status continues until the person shows that a change has occurred.” See s. 196.012, F.S. Permanent residence is a factual determination by the property appraiser. See s. 196.015, F.S.

5. A mail-forwarding service company’s address alone is not sufficient evidence of legal residential address for purposes of voter registration and should not be used to create a fictional residential presence in the county when the voter has no past or present physical presence and no other meaningful contacts in the county (see DE 18-09).
maintain a permanent presence in the county, such persons are temporarily residing out-of-county and should be processed per Section 101.045, Fla. Stat.

4. Legal residence - Homeless. It is against Florida and federal laws to discriminate against a homeless person. The voter registration laws cannot be applied in a manner to deny such person the right to register to vote.\(^6\) Therefore, a person who is homeless or without a permanent ‘traditional’ home but intends to remain permanently in the locale can register using an address for: 1) place where he or she regularly receives messages, 2) the church if it agrees to accept mail or messages on the person’s behalf, 3) the shelter or other local that a person frequents and could be reached, 4) the specific post office for general delivery. It may even be a specific street corner, park bench, vacant lot, etc., to where the person frequently rests or returns and intends to serve as the “home-base”.\(^7\) The point is to be able to locate and assign a precinct to correspond with that location.

5. Legal residence - Military/uniformed services personnel and family members (FVAP/UOCAVA).\(^8\) In order to claim a specific Florida county as residence, a person:

- Must have or had physical presence in the state and simultaneously have the intent to remain or make the Florida his or her home or domicile.
- May only have one legal residence at a time, but may change residency each time he or she is transferred to a new location.
- Must make a conscious decision to change residency as exemplified by such acts as registering to vote, registering a car, qualifying for in-state tuition, etc.
- May not revert to the previous residence without re-establishing new physical presence and intent to remain or return.

Uniformed service personnel and their family members cannot arbitrarily choose which state to declare as their legal voting residence without first meeting the state's residency requirements. Marriage to an active duty member does not automatically confer the same legal residence. Florida’s intent and physical presence criteria must still be met independently except as noted below under the Military Spouse Residency Relief Act of 2009 as amended. A minor typically assumes either one of the parent’s legal residence. Therefore, it is possible for members of the same military family to have different legal residences. Once a minor becomes 18, he or she can establish his or her own residency (which can be different from either parent), provided he or she has physical presence and intent to remain or return.

The Military Spouse Residency Relief Act of 2009\(^9\) (MSRRA) gave a military spouse the right to retain residency status (for voting or taxation purposes) in the same state as the military member when the couple had to relocate from the state due to military orders. It was presumed that the couple shared the same domicile/legal residency state for voting (and/or taxation) purposes and if not, that the spouse had independently met or would meet the state’s residency requirement. The Veterans’ Benefits and Transition Act of 2018\(^10\) (see section 303) amended section 705(b) of the MSRRA (50 U.S.C. 4025(b)). Effective March 31, 2019 and thereafter, a spouse of an absent stateside or overseas service person who is a resident of another state may claim the service person’s state of voter residency by virtue of the marriage regardless of when they married and without having to establish independently physical presence in the service person’s state of voter residency. For example, if the absent stateside or overseas service person is a resident of Florida and the spouse is a resident of Ohio, then the spouse (regardless of when they married) can now claim Florida voter residency without having to independently establish physical presence.

\(^{7}\) Note that the NVRA national mail-in registration form includes a part where an applicant can draw a map to where they live in response to non-traditional types of residential addresses. Supervisors of elections may have to work with their respective post office/voting liaison officer to prevent additional requirements that may have unintended consequences for the homeless voter applicant or registered voter.

6. Legal residence - Overseas Citizens. An overseas citizen’s residence is the last state in which he or she resided immediately prior to leaving the U.S. This right extends to an overseas citizen even if he or she no longer owns property or has no other ties to the last state of residence and his or her intent to return to that state may be uncertain. In the latter case, such overseas citizen is technically temporarily residing outside the county and could not vote in municipal elections. Where a person registers/votes is a factor used to determine residency under federal, state or local tax laws except when exercising the right to vote solely in elections for federal offices.

7. Legal residence - U.S. citizen born or living abroad. A U.S. citizen who is born or living abroad and has never lived in Florida is not permitted to register or vote in Florida under current Florida law.

8. Legal residence - College/University Student. Students constitute a significant percentage of 1st time registrants/voters. A student’s residential address is the address the student intends to be his or her permanent address as stated on the application—just like any other applicant who affirms indefinitely a Florida legal residential address and no matter how long he or she ends up staying (the student may leave for a summer or after 2 or 4 years). A communal university mail address is satisfactory, even if the driver’s license lists a different address.
